

What's up in education
New models for future pre-school services

Good practices to be transferred in Sweden

What we want to experience

Good practice 1

Parents' information

Parents' Information Folder.

Motivation

Clearly, professionally, worked out. Good for parents to get the information collected. An equivalence for the entire preschool area. Through the process of creating this material, we have deepened ourselves in current literature - which can be seen as a competence raising among the teachers.

Good practice 2

Parents' participation

Try to offer parental meetings at a different time, with other content to increase parents' participation.

Motivation

To increase parents' participation.

What we want to experience

Good practice 3

Different ways of families participation

An expanded understanding of what parents' participation in preschool can be.

Motivation

Job shadowing has shown how to invite parents and relatives to participate in preschool in different ways. For example, by valuing their occupations, hobbies and knowledge.

Good practice 4

Natural materials in preschool

Amazing use of natural materials.

Motivation

We need to enrich our material, from plastic to natural materials. Natural materials are changing and creative.

What we want to experience

Good practice 5

Documentation of children's processes

Amazing way of visualizing / documenting children's processes in various project work, including large fine documentary walls.

Motivation

Aesthetically appealing to both children and adults, the processes are made visible. These documentation walls become a tool for reflection together with the children.